Terms of use

Last updated: November 22, 2026

Purpose and publisher

These terms govern the use of Partyfy (partyfy.io, the web app play.partyfy.io and the iOS and Android apps), published by Thierry Leforestier EI, trading as Twiga, SIREN 792 055 154, 367 chemin des meunières, 34400 Lunel, France (contact@partyfy.io). Using Partyfy means accepting these terms. Pass purchases are governed by the Terms of sale.

The service

Partyfy lets a host create a collaborative playlist linked to their Spotify account: guests add tracks and vote, and Partyfy adds the top-ranked tracks to the host's Spotify queue. The service is free for up to 8 participants per playlist, host included; beyond that, the host can buy a pass (see the Terms of sale).

Accounts and access

The host must create an account and have a Spotify Premium subscription. A guest can join with just a first name (guest account) or with a full account, depending on the host's setting. You are responsible for the accuracy of the information you provide and for keeping your credentials confidential. You can delete your account at any time from the app.

The host's role

The host manages their playlist: they choose who can join, can block a participant, decide who keeps the right to add tracks and vote after a pass ends, and can delete the playlist. They agree to use these features in good faith.

Acceptable use

You agree not to post unlawful, hateful, harassing or defamatory content or content infringing others' rights (nicknames, playlist names and images, chat messages), not to impersonate anyone, not to create automated accounts or votes, and not to disrupt the service or circumvent its limits and safeguards. You can report abuse to contact@partyfy.io.

Spotify

Partyfy works with Spotify but is not affiliated with Spotify AB. Music is played by Spotify, on the host's devices, under Spotify's terms of use. Partyfy cannot guarantee that Spotify works or that a track is available, and any change to Spotify's services may affect some features.

Availability

Partyfy is provided as is. We do our best to keep it available and reliable, but it may be interrupted, in particular for maintenance, updates or if a provider fails (hosting, Spotify, app stores). Free features may change.

Liability

Each user is responsible for the content they post. To the extent permitted by law, Partyfy is not liable for content posted by users or for indirect damage related to using the service or to its unavailability. Nothing in these terms limits your rights under consumer law.

Intellectual property

Partyfy, its app, brand and content are protected. You keep your rights to the content you post (nickname, playlist image, messages) and allow Partyfy to display it to the playlist's other participants for the purposes of the service. Tracks, artwork and music information come from Spotify.

Personal data

Partyfy processes your data (account, participation, votes, messages) to provide the service, in accordance with the GDPR. Details, and your rights of access, rectification and deletion, are set out in the Privacy policy.

Suspension and termination

You can stop using Partyfy and delete your account at any time. In case of a serious breach of these terms, Partyfy may suspend or delete an account or a playlist, after a warning except in an emergency or obvious abuse.

Changes and governing law

These terms may change; the version in force is dated at the top of the page and significant changes are announced in the app. They are governed by French law. If something goes wrong, please write to contact@partyfy.io first so we can find an amicable solution.